About the Cover

Madison Community Foundation, its fundholders and the nonprofit organizations we support are advancing a vibrant community where fairness, inclusion and respect thrive. Each contribution, whether large or small, provides innovative initiatives and programs the support they need to flourish, paving the way for positive change.

Pictured on the cover is one such program: a rendering of the plans adopted by the City of Madison for the new Lake Monona waterfront. In 2014, the Nolen Centennial Plan fleshed out the dream of creating a more pedestrian-friendly area to connect the Alliant Energy Center campus with Lake Monona and Law Park. This plan, and several subsequent ideas, all envisioned creating a vibrant urban waterfront where the community could gather and enjoy the beauty of the lake.

One of MCF's 75th anniversary grants — Evolution Madison — set the stage to begin the visioning process for a new lakefront with a grant for the Nolen Waterfront Vision. In 2018, an MCF grant to the Friends of the Nolen Waterfront kicked off the Law Park Design Challenge, allowing the group to begin soliciting design ideas from firms across the country.

In late 2023, the City of Madison approved a plan by Sasaki to transform the lakefront into a community-focused area for recreation and environmental protection and to honor the Ho-Chunk people who have long called this area home. MCF has awarded Friends of Nolen Waterfront a grant to build their capacity and bring the redesign to life.

Dear Friends,

The essence of philanthropy lies both in the act of giving — and the positive impact it produces. It is a testament to the collective belief that we can create a better world, and recognition that generosity is part of the path to doing so. As the community's foundation, MCF works to inspire and advance philanthropy in the Greater Madison area.

We are pleased to share MCF's Annual Report for 2023. We hope that you are inspired by the stories that follow, and all that we have achieved together as friends and neighbors. We thank each of you for the large and small ways you create that better future every day.

As you read the report you will see that donors provided $8.5 million in contributions — most of that into endowments — and MCF and its fundholders made grants totaling $12.5 million to a wide array of nonprofit organizations.

In 2023, we also adopted a Hate-Free Grantmaking Policy, which you can find on our website. It states that MCF will not make grants to organizations that engage in hateful activities such as violence, dehumanization or threats against an individual or group based on their anti-discrimination status. This policy ensures not only that MCF's grants are consistent with our mission, vision and values, but that distributions from nonprofit and donor advised funds are as well.

For more than 80 years, MCF's endowments have provided a reliable and growing source of support for our community. The success of the community foundation is the community's story because it reflects what we can accomplish when we come together for good. We hope you are inspired by the stories, reports and people featured here, because without you, none of this would be possible.

Engaging With Donors

MCF is dedicated to fostering a culture of giving in our community and helping people achieve their charitable goals. Whether someone is interested in giving during their lifetime or leaving a lasting impact through their estate, MCF helps them create enduring financial legacies of support for the causes that are meaningful to them.

In 2023, generous donors — small and large — came together at MCF to drive positive community change.

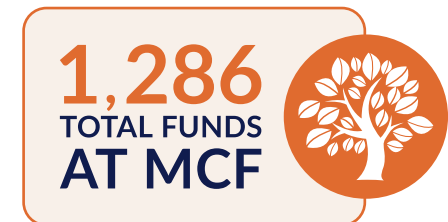

We had the honor of helping community members establish 29 new funds — advised funds that provide flexibility to support the fundholders' philanthropic priorities; designated funds to support specific organizations; and scholarship funds to help students achieve their educational goals.

We also were humbled to receive seven estate gifts that will create legacies of support for a variety of organizations and causes.

We are grateful for the generosity of our neighbors and inspired by the impact we achieve together.

Thank you for your trust in the community's foundation.

Helping Advisors Meet Their Clients' Charitable Goals

Professional advisors play an important role in philanthropy, especially in educating their clients about charitable giving. MCF provided many professional development opportunities in 2023.

CAP Study Group Cohorts

MCF hosted its second group of professional advisors working to achieve their Chartered Advisor in Philanthropy (CAP®) credential. The CAP program is offered through The American College of Financial Services, and provides development professionals and professional advisors with the knowledge to better integrate charitable gift planning into peoples' financial, business and estate plans.

"The CAP program has been transformative to both my interactions with clients and to my overall advisory practice," Cymbre Van Fossen, Trust Advisor & Director of Philanthropic Services at First Business Bank, explained. "As a result of the CAP experience, I have come to realize that my professional passions lie in deepening conversations around philanthropic planning and in bringing creative charitable planning strategies to complex planning situations."

Participants in MCF's CAP study group meet and learn together as they prepare for the CAP exams. The study group sessions also provide opportunities to network and learn from guest speakers, including Mark Weber, author of "A Spectrum of Legacies," who spoke with the group in 2023. They also discuss the coursework and share observations on how the lessons apply to participants' respective practices.

Van Fossen continued, "I also found great value in being part of a collegial and interactive CAP cohort that introduced me to the perspectives and expertise of advisors from other disciplines."

Advisor Education Events

In August, more than 80 local advisors joined MCF at the Madison Club to hear nationally recognized speaker and educator Phil Cubeta discuss the advisor's role in multi-generational charitable planning.

Phil was joined by a panel of local advisors for a discussion highlighting best practices advisors and nonprofit leaders can use to help donors develop and implement their giving plans, and by philanthropists Bea and Lau Christensen, who shared what charitable giving means to them.

"Attending this fantastic event provided me the opportunity to meet other advisors in the community interested in supporting their clients' philanthropic goals," shared Maggie Premo, Chair of Neider & Boucher, S.C.'s Trust & Estates Team. "It also provided me with resources and discussion ideas that I can incorporate into my own practice when discussing charitable giving with my clients."

Providing these opportunities to learn as a community helps elevate the discussion around philanthropy in our community, which benefits us all.

Doing Good Whenever and Wherever Possible

Barbara Roeber and Larry Black Plan Their Legacy

"A lot of people think leaving a legacy is complicated. But with MCF it's so easy," Barbara Roeber and Larry Black explained about the process of establishing their legacy plan with MCF.

Inspired by the mantra, "Unless it works for everybody, it doesn't work for anybody," Barb and Larry are committed to maximizing their impact both during their lifetime and beyond. Their legacy story began during a routine meeting with their estate planning attorney, Eileen Kelley, at Stafford Rosenbaum.

"We were discussing what we wanted to do with our estate, and how we could have the most impact," Larry explained. "We already had some idea about the causes and organizations that we wanted to support because we talk about it for our year-end giving. But there are so many ways you can give through your estate. It was overwhelming."

A Surprise Suggestion

As long-time supporters of the Mann Educational Opportunity Fund, which is housed at MCF, Barb and Larry were familiar with MCF. But they were surprised when Eileen suggested they call MCF to help plan their legacy.

"While MCF has been part of our giving now, during our lifetimes, we didn't even realize MCF could help us with planning our legacy," they explained.

They connected with Camille Zanoni, Director of Donor & Giving Partner Engagement. Camille provided clarity on the various options for estate giving and gave Barb and Larry tools to articulate their goals.

"After we had decided that we wanted to start a fund, Camille suggested that we use two questions, 'what causes us sorrow' and 'what brings us joy,' to guide us in deciding what issues we wanted to support," Barb shared. "This made things very clear for us."

"After we decided on the categories of education, natural resources and supporting humanity, it was easy to fill each with the specific organizations that resonated with us."

Maximizing Their Impact Now and in the Future

Through the guidance of MCF, Barb and Larry were able to transform their desire to leave a legacy into a tangible plan of action. In the process, they discovered that leaving a legacy doesn't have to be complicated — it just requires the right support and a clear vision.

"We've always believed in helping other people," Barb said. "It was so easy to create a plan at MCF to do what we wanted with our legacy. I feel so grateful that Eileen suggested that we reach out."

Leaving a Legacy for the Future

Leaving a legacy gift through your will or trust, by creating a charitable gift annuity, or by naming MCF as the beneficiary of your life insurance or retirement plan, allows you to extend your impact far beyond your lifetime and ensure a legacy of support for the causes and community you value.

In 2023, we were honored to receive legacy gifts from the following people:

Phyllis S. Anderson, whose gift to the Patrick and Conor Shea Fund for Dyslexic Children provides resources to help young people overcome the challenges of dyslexia.

Kate E. Edwards, whose gift to the A Fund for Women Endowment helps improve the lives of women and girls in our community.

Gary J. Ferron, whose gift to the Beyond the Page Fund supports free humanities programming at libraries throughout Dane County.

Marcella Finegan, whose gift to the Henry Vilas Zoo supports its education, conservation and animal welfare programs.

Shirley Kubly, whose gift created the Shirley Kubly Fund for Henry Vilas Zoo.

Richard W. McCoy, whose gift to the Community Restorative Justice Fund helps the community heal the harm caused by crime.

Natalie A. Tinkham, whose gift to the Priority Fund allows MCF to respond to opportunities and needs of our community.

Marcella Finegan and Shirley Kubly left legacies of support for the Henry Vilas Zoo.

The Wind at People's Backs

Bev Buhr's and Carin Bringelson's journey into philanthropy is deeply rooted in their personal experiences and their commitment to social equity. The couple met at a racial justice workshop at their Unitarian Universalist church more than 25 years ago.

The connection between their passion for racial justice and their lived experience as women in a same-sex relationship came into sharper focus in 2015, when M Adams, then the co-executive director of Freedom, Inc., published "How Police Killing Unarmed Black People is a Queer Issue."

"It really spoke to me," Bev explained. "We were very grateful to be able to live comfortably in Madison as white queer people. But we realized that not all queer people had that same experience."

Inspired, they began looking at ways they could support the work being done at Freedom, Inc.

Becoming Philanthropists

Around the same time, they received a copy of "Middle Class Philanthropist: How anyone can leave a legacy," written by local estate planning attorney Melinda Gustafson Gervasi. It opened their eyes to the possibility of what they could accomplish through a donor advised fund.

A search for local providers led them to MCF, where they established the QuARE (Queer and Racial Equity) Fund to support grassroots organizations championing both racial and queer justice.

"Creating the fund as a donor advised fund gives us the flexibility to support organizations that may not exist yet, but that will form and provide support for their communities," Bev said.

Viewing Money Communally

Today Bev and Carin live in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, but they still consider Madison their hometown, and a community they want to continue supporting.

"We have met people through our connection with Freedom Inc. whose relationship with money and with generosity is different; who see their money as the community's money. And we have embraced that," Bev said. "We've lived, loved and created a family in Madison, and we want to give back so that others can share that same experience."

"For us, love, equity and generosity are centered in our faith," Carin explained. "We know not everyone has the privileges we've had and not everyone feels they can give. But you can't take it with you. I feel we're supposed to pass our money on."

"Giving has been so good for us — it feels good to give," Bev shared. "As I get older, I really like the idea of leaving a legacy that reflects my values. With the QuARE Fund, I have that. But even more so, through our giving we've been invited into community and developed relationships that have enriched our lives."

"You know how it feels when you're biking with the wind at your back? You feel strong and powerful and biking seems easy. Then you turn around and it's so much harder to get anywhere," Carin explained. "I think privilege is like that. With our giving, we hope to be the wind at people's backs."

Collective Impact

Among our community's greatest assets are the nonprofits that strengthen and enhance the lives of the people they serve. When nonprofits thrive, everyone thrives.

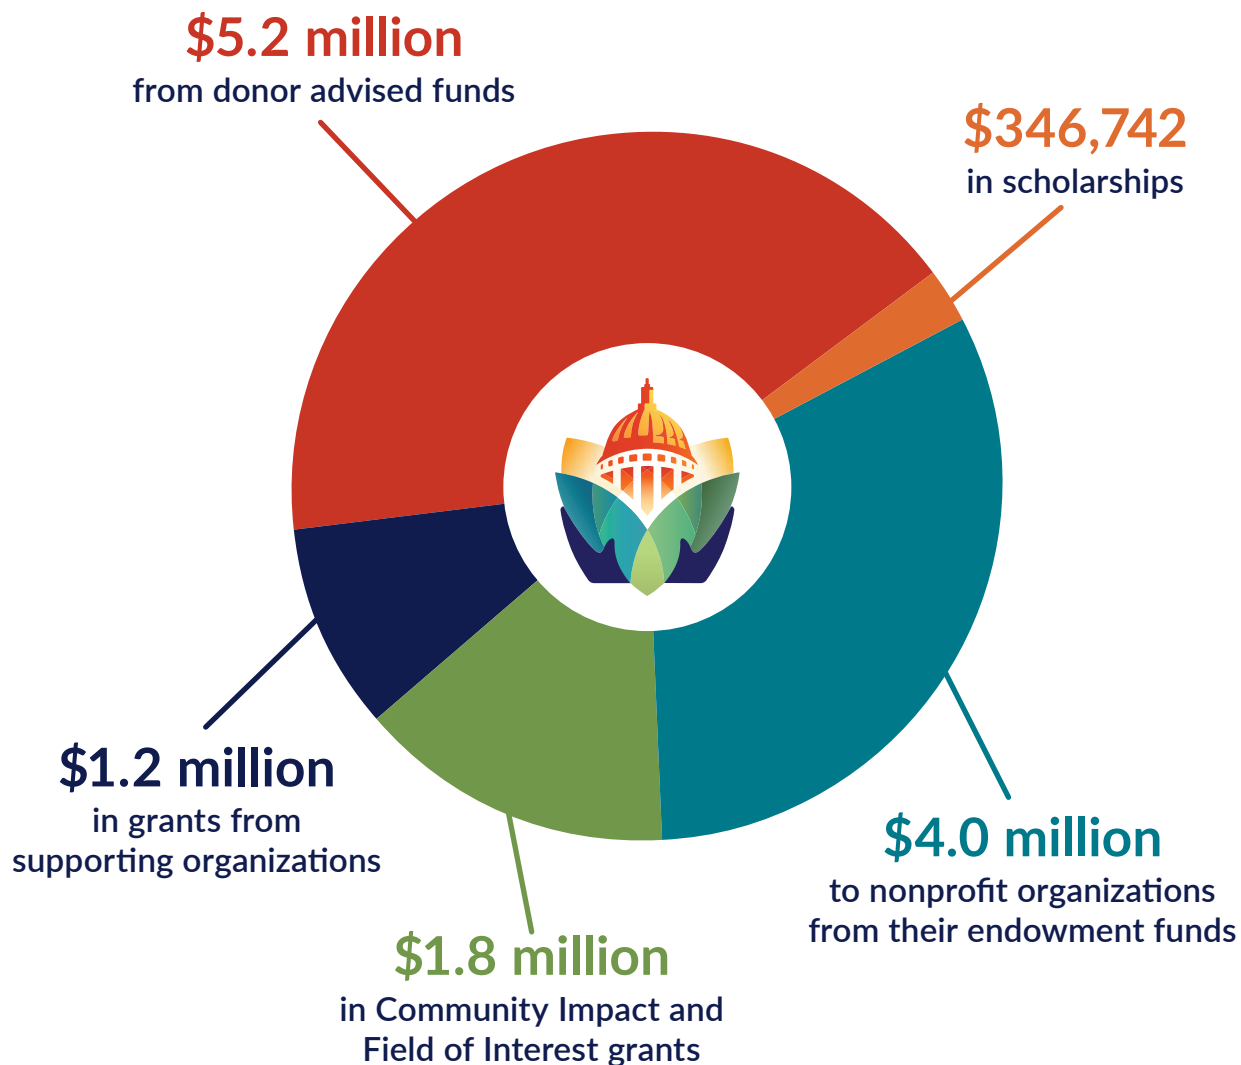

In 2023, MCF and its fundholders distributed $12.5 million in support to nonprofit organizations working here in Dane County, and across the country. This money helped nonprofits develop and deliver programs to nurture creativity, increase inclusivity, bolster learning and provide vital support to people in need.

MCF awarded 77 Community Impact and Field of Interest grants — expanding home ownership opportunities, restoring waterways and supporting the arts and arts accessibility. These grants also play a role in supporting the organizational development and sustainability of our community's nonprofits.

MCF also is steward to the endowment funds of more than 300 nonprofit organizations. Those endowments provided more than $4 million in distributions back to these organizations, providing a reliable and vital stream of annual income for them.

Together, we are having an impact on our community in many ways.

$12.5 Million Distributed to the Community in 2023

Community Impact Grants: Sowing the Seeds of Change

Madison Community Foundation has a rigorous, three-tiered approach to grantmaking involving staff, our grantmaking committee and our board of governors. Each year, MCF staff talk with hundreds of area nonprofits about their plans and vision for the community. From these conversations we generally receive about 100 letters of inquiry and work to identify projects and proposals that best fit MCF's five Community Impact focus areas. After MCF receives the grant applications, staff and the grantmaking committee, which is made up of representatives of the community, review the projects; consider the organizations' planning, sustainability and impact; and make funding recommendations to the board of governors.

In 2023, MCF awarded $960,000 in grants to nonprofits during its Community Impact competitive grant cycle, combining funds with Field of Interest money where possible.

Creating an Affordable Path to Home Ownership

Madison Area Community Land Trust

In the 1990s, community leaders recognized a crisis coming to the Madison metropolitan area: the lack of affordable housing. In the last three decades, this crisis has grown, with median home prices in Madison rising at nearly three times the rate of wages. Madison Area Community Land Trust was founded in 1991 to promote affordable housing for first-time buyers who earn at or below 80% of median income in Dane County.

MACLT uses a different approach to tackle the lack of affordable housing in Madison — a land trust model. “We preserve the affordability of each home by retaining ownership of the land underneath the homes, while the homeowner leases the land from MACLT using a 98-year renewable ground lease,” explained Executive Director Olivia Williams. This model allows buyers to purchase a home for 25% to 50% below market value, with additional access to down-payment assistance.

MACLT isn't just creating affordable housing opportunities, it's using an equity-focused policy to create permanently affordable housing. Homeowners agree to “pay it forward” to the next buyer by selling the home at an affordable price based on MACLT's resale formula. “We have served 123 families with our 62 homes, meaning the impact of the initial subsidy in each home has nearly doubled over time,” added Williams.

A $100,000 grant from MCF will allow MACLT to hire a new staff person to expand its organizational capacity and more than double its portfolio in the next five years. With support of this grant, MACLT will also create a self-sustaining Housing Development Program to increase construction of permanently affordable units in the long term. Williams commented, “This initial investment of $100,000 will help MACLT generate $500,000 of programmatic income, which will be used to develop more housing and have ripples of impact on affordable homeownership in Dane County for decades to come.”

Learn more about MACLT's work at maclt.org.

Offering a Space for BIPOC Dancers to Learn and Grow

KLJ Movement

Since its inception in 2020, KLJ Movement has been bringing accessible, BIPOC-centered dance programs to the Madison community. Founded on the pillars of liberation, compassion, social justice, authenticity, joy and knowledge, KLJ Movement offers a space for novice and professional dancers to learn, grow and develop while emphasizing the importance of the contributions of BIPOC individuals in the dance styles it teaches.

KLJ Movement's Founder and Executive Director, Kyra Johnson, explained, "In my dance classes growing up, I often found that I was the only Black woman in the room. This experience drove me to provide a space where all genders, races and body types are celebrated and uplifted."

KLJ Movement is building fellowship by offering a wide range of classes and workshops for all ages. A scholar program for youth and teens, a professional dance company, movement workshops for adults, and a community impact program all are housed within KLJ Movement. The community impact program has connected with 23 organizations to bring dance classes and workshops to youth and adults around the state. "Everything we do is very intentional and rooted in our six pillars," Johnson commented. "We offer dance styles that aren't always offered in traditional dance spaces, but also tap into those traditional styles that have historically excluded Black and Brown folks."

Introducing Girls to the Thrill of Flying Women in Aviation – Four Lakes Chapter

In the United States today, less than 7% of pilots are women. Women in Aviation International aims to bridge this gap by introducing girls and women to the thrill of aviation and STEM fields. Christy Beneke, President of the Four Lakes Chapter of WAI, explained, “Exposure to aviation and STEM fields at a young age for girls is critical to plant a seed that this career is a possibility for them.”

MCF awarded a $1,000 grant to WAI, Four Lakes Chapter for its Aviation Festival on Girls in Aviation Day. The festival was held at Middleton Airport and drew nearly 200 girls and their families.

“Participants traveled from station to station learning about navigation, weather, air traffic control, gyroplanes, helicopters, preflighting an airplane, flying and more,” added Beneke. The festival also included more than a dozen aircraft that participants could sit in and explore, along with flight simulators to gain experience controlling a plane.

This annual festival empowers women and girls through hands-on activities that introduce them to aviation career paths and Wisconsin's aviation community.

You can learn more about WAI at waifourlakes.wordpress.com.

A Fund for Women Celebrates 30 Years

A Fund for Women was founded in 1993 when Jane Coleman, who was then the Executive Director of Madison Community Foundation, called on a group of generous women to start an endowment fund focused on charitable giving for women's issues.

These original donors gave $100,000 to launch the fund; at the end of 2023, together with additional gifts over the years, the fund had a value of approximately $4 million.

Since 1993, AFFW has provided 179 grants totaling more than $2 million to provide the women of our community with educational and economic advancement, safe havens and housing, and family-supporting careers.

The fund celebrated its 30th anniversary in 2023 by awarding $150,400 to 13 organizations. "When A Fund for Women started 30 years ago, it would have been hard to imagine awarding more in grants than the fund's entire starting value," Sue Gaard, Chair of A Fund for Women's advisory committee, shared. "We are grateful for our supporters and fundholders who made this growth possible. Economic security for families in Dane County happens when we invest in women."

Learn more about AFFW's history as founding donors share their stories in the video "Celebrating 30 Years of A Fund for Women," found on our website at madisongives.org/affw30years.

Finance and Operations

Both of MCF's investment portfolios rebounded strongly from last year's losses with strong year-end returns. Even more importantly, given MCF's long-term investment horizon, our 10-year and 15-year portfolio returns remain strong.

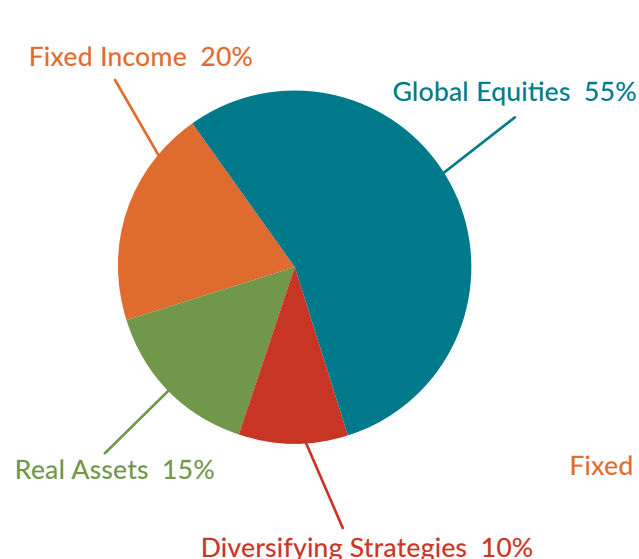

MCF's investment committee and Commonfund, which functions as our outsourced chief investment officer, continue to favor heavy portfolio allocations to equities for their historically higher returns. As you can see from the graphs on this page, both portfolios have smaller allocations to fixed income than to equities and other risk assets. This exposure to risk is mitigated by the perpetual investment horizon of MCF's endowments.

MCF continues to perform well compared to its community foundation peers. MCF's goal is to achieve top quartile (75%) of performance against our peers. At the end of 2023, the diversified portfolio was in the top decile performance at the three- and 10-year marks.

Giving Partner Funds

MCF's regional giving partners are dedicated to strengthening their communities. They partner with MCF for efficiency and expertise, and award grants to fund schools, parks, community centers and other local programs. Each giving partner is represented by an advisory committee of residents from that community, which raises resources and recommends grants from their endowments. If you'd like to learn more about the work giving partners are doing, visit madisongives.org/partners.

The Columbus Area Endowment works to enhance the community's vitality through grants to local organizations.

Joel and Carol Wish

"We are very grateful for the expertise and compassion shown by MCF staff in helping establish the Aren J Wish Memorial Fund to honor our daughter. We take solace that Aren's memory will live on while supporting our community in ways that embody her values. MCF also helped us craft our personal legacy plan, which will direct future resources to the local, national and international charities we hold dear. It gives us great peace of mind to know that MCF will be there to competently manage both Aren's memorial fund and our legacy plan."

Tailor Your Giving

Support the causes you care about through a variety of tools during your lifetime or through your estate:

Donor Advised Funds

From permanent endowments to temporary passthrough funds, donor advised funds are an efficient, flexible tool to help you meet your charitable goals. As the fundholder, you recommend distributions to support the causes that are meaningful to you on your timeline and may name fund advisors to succeed you.

Donor Designated Funds

Help sustain your favorite nonprofit organization by creating a permanent, named fund designated to support their work.

Field of Interest Funds

Establish a permanent fund to support a broad area of interest in our community such as basic needs, equity, education or the environment. MCF will identify organizations and priority opportunities to support each year. Give to one of MCF's established funds (see AFFW below) or create your own named fund.

A Fund for Women

As a Field of Interest Fund, AFFW empowers the women and girls in our community to thrive and reach their full potential. You can make a one-time gift or create a named, permanent endowment fund today or through your estate.

Support MCF's Grantmaking

Provide unrestricted support for MCF's highest-priority efforts through the Priority Fund, or give to the Community Impact Fund to support our competitive grantmaking throughout Dane County.

Regional Giving Partners

Regional Giving Partner funds are advised by a committee of community residents to support local opportunities to make a difference. Support the Giving Partner funds of Columbus, Lodi, Middleton, Monona, Portage and Rio, or help create a new fund to benefit your community.

Scholarship Funds

Help students reach their educational goals by creating or growing a named, permanent scholarship fund to benefit a particular population or area of study.
