The Downtown Street Art and Mural Project

As the nation struggled to contain the coronavirus pandemic, it was further rocked by the death of George Floyd on May 25 while in the custody of the Minneapolis police. Floyd's death set off protests across the nation, and around the world. In Madison, peaceful daytime protests were followed by looting in the evenings, which forced many businesses to shutter their storefronts with plywood.

The Madison Arts Commission, funded in part by a Community Impact grant from Madison Community Foundation (MCF), responded to the bleak sight of State Street by creating the Downtown Street Art and Mural Project, which engaged dozens of local artists to use these spaces as an opportunity for expression and civic engagement. More than 100 murals, including the one on our cover, were painted in and around State Street, creating a vibrant visual dialogue addressing racism, memorializing lost lives and inspiring love.

Artists participated in panel discussions and were highlighted in local and national media. "Let's Talk About It: The Art, The Artists and the Racial Justice Movement on Madison's State Street," a book focused on the project, was produced by (and is available through) the American Family Insurance Institute for Corporate and Social Impact. In addition, several of the murals will become part of the permanent collection of the Wisconsin Historical Museum.

MCF's long-standing vision — that greater Madison will be a vibrant and generous place where all people thrive — is impossible to achieve without ending racism. We remain committed to this journey.

Dear Friends,

We hope you and your family are healthy and safe. 2020 was certainly a challenging year. Efforts to end the pandemic, confront racial inequity, adopt new ways of working, and navigate social isolation were at the forefront of all our minds. So was generosity. At a time when so many people felt vulnerable, their response was to help those who were more vulnerable.

While the loss of program revenue was extraordinarily challenging for the hundreds of nonprofits that MCF works with every year, gift revenue in 2020 was strong for many. MCF had the same experience, and in fact saw another record year of contributions.

It was also a year where MCF did some of its most creative and successful grantmaking — finding ways to leverage grant dollars for the greatest impact in our community. In one case, working with Scholz Nonprofit Law, we helped at least 170 nonprofits access more than $27 million in forgivable loans through the Paycheck Protection Program.

In another case we worked with other funders and eight nonprofits to reach historically underrepresented populations to increase participation in the Census. Every person counted ensures an additional (approximate) $20,000 in federal funding for our community over the following decade. Over 1,000 people filled out the forms through these efforts, representing a minimum of $21 million in funding (likely much higher as many of those forms covered more than one person).

Between MCF grants, fundholder distributions and supporting organizations, the community's foundation distributed more than $29 million last year. Without you, our donors and fundholders, none of this would be possible. And together with you, we met the challenge of 2020 with generosity, creativity and strength. We are grateful for your support. As you read this annual report we hope you are proud of what we accomplished, together.

With our gratitude and best wishes,

Helping Pave the Way for Others to Succeed

After Verona Morgan’s husband Julius passed away, she and her four daughters knew exactly what they wanted to do to honor his memory: create a scholarship in his name.

“I made that decision right away,” Verona shared about establishing the Julius Morgan and Verona L. Morgan Scholarship. “Julius believed that education is the foundation for everything in life, especially for young men and women of color.”

As the first African American programmer analyst in the Wisconsin Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations, Julius often found that, despite the extensive computer training he received during his 12 years in the Air Force, people often were unwilling to accept his expertise.

At the same time, Verona was advancing in her career at Wisconsin Telephone Company. “I discovered abilities I had no idea I had,” Verona explained. “Being an African American woman and supervising men was tough, but I really wanted to excel. So when I heard Edgewood College was setting up a weekend degree program, I looked into it and signed up.” And Julius went with her.

“Julius had an opportunity to continue his education and see the benefits that came from that,” Verona explained. “The girls and I wanted to honor him, so we set up the scholarship for a young African American man involved in computer science, because that’s the field Julius worked in. Julius knew what young Black men have to go through to become successful. We want to help others along so that maybe they will have to struggle less.”

It was through her work at Women in Focus, Inc., an organization that works to encourage and support students of color to succeed in education, that Verona was introduced to Madison Community Foundation.

She saw that working with the two organizations together would provide everything she needed for the scholarship fund. “I chose to work through Madison Community Foundation to set up the fund, but to have Women in Focus choose the recipient each year and award the scholarship.”

The Julius Morgan and Verona L. Morgan Scholarship fund has already been able to award its first scholarship, to an East High School graduate.

“I read his resume, and right away I knew,” Verona recalled. “He had started taking computer classes in high school, and already had worked as an intern. I said, ‘I’m glad this young man received our scholarship.’”

Helping Women Make Change

When Mary Strickland and Meg Prestigiacomio started their careers in wealth management, women in the financial services world were few, and women investors were even fewer. But over the past 20 years, they have both seen big changes.

“Women are relatively new to accumulating wealth and having their own money to invest or donate. It used to be that their husbands dictated everything,” Mary explained. But as more women moved into well-paying careers, or were taking control of their own finances after the death of their husband or divorce, that started to change. “So we started having these seminars for women to learn about investing.”

“Over the years, we’ve discovered that women are really good at looking at the bigger picture,” Meg added, “and investing for the long term. Maybe that’s because they’re patient.” That long-term focus also may explain why many women want to feel very secure about their own financial independence before they do anything else.

In both Meg’s and Mary’s experience, once women feel comfortable about their own financial independence, they often want to support others. That’s what first led Mary to MCF.

Mary remembers, “I first got involved with MCF through A Fund for Women (AFFW). For me, it was just a natural tie in. Women’s issues are really important to me, but sometimes I would wonder as I was writing checks out to a lot of different organizations if my money was going to the right place. With AFFW, I know my money will have an impact.” (See page 10 to learn about AFFW’s grantmaking.)

Mary and Meg want to share that positive experience with their clients. “When clients want to set up a donor advised fund,” Mary said, “I often tell them, ‘Go to MCF; they have the expertise you need.’ MCF has a deep knowledge of the nonprofit community in Madison, and a sophisticated understanding of philanthropy combined with sound fiscal management.”

“We work with people at MCF who I truly respect,” Meg said. “I see the staff out and about in the community, getting involved and volunteering. They clearly have a commitment to Madison, knowledge of its history, and a real understanding of the community’s needs.”

Mary Strickland

Meg Prestigiacomio

Both Meg and Mary focus on helping their clients create a financial plan that is consistent with their values and goals. “Our clients want to give back to the community that has been there and supported them – whether it’s their business or their families,” Meg explained. “And we’ve seen that accelerate over the past year with COVID. Working with an organization like MCF that understands the community is really important to them.”

Mary Strickland is a certified financial planner and financial advisor, and Meg Prestigiacomio is a certified financial planner, certified private wealth advisor and financial advisor. They both are part of the Prestigiacomio Carroll Group at Baird in Madison.

DONOR ENGAGEMENT IN A PANDEMIC

Helping donors achieve their charitable giving goals is more challenging in the midst of a pandemic, as our donor engagement team discovered in 2020. But they rose to the challenge, learning new software and finding tools to work with people virtually.

The pandemic caused many in our community to think about how they could support the organizations they love. MCF worked with donors and fundholders to help them establish new funds, find organizations to support or plan their legacy.

Darcy Kobinsky

“ COVID-19 has caused us all to slow down and ponder what matters. Helping so many generous and thoughtful donors form a plan to leave their legacy, to support the nonprofits and causes they love – forever – was a high point for me, and was one of the pandemic’s few silver linings.

A Lifetime Advocating for Renewable Energy

As a junior in college, Don Wichert attended the First Earth Day and found his eyes opened. “I realized how much environmental degradation surrounded us, and I immediately got involved in trying to change that.” And he’s remained involved, getting a degree in environmental engineering and spending the majority of his career working for the Wisconsin State Energy Office.

In 1989, Don started working on a new project to advocate for renewable energy in Wisconsin. That project became RENEW Wisconsin in 1991. “I see renewable energy as a win-win-win, but there weren’t really any organizations advocating for it,” Don explained. “Renewable energy was expensive at the time, and it wasn’t mainstream. We needed someone at the policy table as much as possible, every day.”

In 2016, as part of RENEW’s 25th anniversary celebration, Don worked with MCF to create an endowment for RENEW. “We wanted something that would provide a reliable stream of income,” Don explained. “Setting up the endowment was really easy. Even though our fund started as a relatively small fund, MCF provided all the support we needed to get it going, and staff were available to answer all my questions.”

Don Wichert flips the switch to activate the solar system on the roof at the Willy Street Co-op.

Today, the fund helps support students in the Energy Analysis and Policy Program at the University of Wisconsin’s Nelson Institute, where Don received his graduate degree.

Don also has two charitable gift annuities (CGAs) that will benefit RENEW after his death. “The idea of a charitable gift annuity was very appealing. The guaranteed interest rate was high enough to make it a reasonable investment during my lifetime. And the CGA provides tax benefits too.”

“It’s such a great thing, to be able to support students with a stipend while they’re working at RENEW; every student they’ve had is working in some type of renewable energy job after graduation,” Don explained. “I’m happy that the funds from my CGA policies will help that endowment grow so we can continue to provide that support. RENEW, and the work that it does, is my legacy.”

Legacy Giving Plants Hope for the Future

A legacy gift is an expression of hope for the future. Members of our Legacy Society have chosen to make a commitment to our community's future with a planned gift from their estate. We are honored to help them fulfill their vision and support their values.

This year, MCF chose to recognize the long-term commitment of our Legacy Society members in a tangible way. Together with Dane County Parks and the Foundation for Dane County Parks, MCF is planting a "Legacy Forest" in our beloved parks — one tree for each Legacy Society member. These trees will help replace the trees that were lost to the invasive Emerald Ash Borer.

Planning to leave a legacy through MCF for the causes and organizations you care about can be a fulfilling experience. You can help ensure they receive a steady stream of support for decades — and generations — to come.

The COVID-19 pandemic affected everyone in the state, whether they live in cities, suburbs or small towns. Our giving partners stepped in immediately to support their communities by providing grants to nonprofit organizations on the front lines, and assistance to their neighbors in need.

Giving Partners Provide Valuable Support to Their Communities

Giving partners work with MCF to facilitate philanthropy in their communities. They bring together donors with a common purpose to pool resources and create collective impact. By collaborating with MCF, these partners are able to benefit from MCF’s professional expertise in fund development and grantmaking, and take advantage of MCF’s investment expertise, administrative support and gift processing capabilities.

A Fund for Women

The COVID-19 pandemic had a high impact on women and girls, especially women of color. To address these urgent needs, in 2020 AFFW decided to make immediate proactive grants to organizations working to support women, girls and their families. Grants supported those facing insecure access to food, shelter, education and income due to COVID-19.

Grants were awarded to the following nonprofit organizations:

Centro Hispano: $7,500 to provide support to the Latino community, which was particularly hard hit by the COVID-19 pandemic and often lacked access to traditional assistance programs.

DAIS: $20,000 to help offset the pandemic’s high impact on those experiencing or at risk for domestic violence, and to redeploy staff to provide extra support to families trying to manage kids and remote schooling.

Foundation for Black Women’s Wellness: $20,000 to provide emergency assistance to Black women and their families, who have been hit particularly hard by the community destabilization caused by COVID-19.

Latinx Consortium Emergency Relief Fund: $30,000 to help Latino families pay rent and small business owners cover payroll, helping the many Latino workers in the service industry, who are particularly exposed to COVID-19.

Madison Reading Project: $500 to provide books to students who lost access to them when the libraries and schools closed, so they can continue to experience the benefits and joy of reading.

UW Odyssey Project: $5,000 to provide reliable internet access to 10 Odyssey students and their families, allowing them to participate in the program’s online educational classes.

YWCA Madison: $20,000 to help institute COVID-19 safety measures to protect the women in the Single Women’s Housing program and Empower Home, and to provide extra support to these women, many of whom lost their jobs during the pandemic.

Regional Giving Partners

2020 was difficult for communities large and small. MCF's regional giving partners rose to the challenge, moving quickly to provide grants to support their communities and embracing virtual technology. They saw their communities respond generously with strong levels of giving, despite the hardships they were facing.

Virtual Events Help Maintain Connections

Throughout the pandemic, our giving partners worked to maintain connections and traditions while keeping each other safe. They embraced new ways of doing things and created meaningful virtual events to recognize their supporters and celebrate philanthropy.

Alan Strohschein, a member of the Columbus Area Endowment's (CAE's) Executive Committee, presented the Philanthropist of the Year Award to Twyla Sheskey, who represented the Guenther-Sheskey families. CAE shared the video at a virtual event, which was held over Zoom.

MCF'S SIX REGIONAL GIVING PARTNERS ARE:

Columbus Area Endowment

Lodi Area Community Endowment

Middleton Endowment

The Monona Fund

Portage Area Community Fund

Rio Community Foundation

Middleton Endowment

The Middleton Endowment (ME) has raised more than $275,000 for its endowment fund since it was formed in 2007. It has awarded more than $75,000 in grants to 65 organizations, living up to its motto of "Good Neighbors Doing Good Works." In 2020, ME awarded grants to the following organizations:

- Clark Street Community School, the Middleton-Cross Plains Area School District's project-based charter school for high school students, to provide a self-care tool kit for each of their 100-plus students to use during virtual learning.
- Friends of the Middleton Public Library, to purchase copies of "The Snowy Day" in English and Spanish that were given to families at the library's Winter StoryWalk.
- The Red Line Club, toward the cost to build two sheets of ice for hockey players of all ages and anyone else who wants to skate.
- Middleton-Cross Plains Area School District Foundation, for the Weekend Food Program, to purchase meals for students and their families when school was not in session due to COVID-19. The program has served 300 meals each week for more than 30 weeks.
- Community Table Fund, to provide protein-based prepared meals to Middleton Outreach Ministry's food pantry.
- Awarded the Cecile Druzba Middleton Endowment Scholarship to high school senior Anna Jordan, who plans to become a pediatric nurse.

Give Your Way

You can support the causes you care about in a variety of ways — by contributing to an existing fund or establishing your own.

DONOR-ADVISED FUNDS

Donor-advised funds allow donors to recommend grants to charitable organizations and programs that are meaningful to them. From permanent endowments to temporary passthrough funds, MCF offers a variety of fund options to accommodate varying giving goals.

COMMUNITY IMPACT FUNDS

MCF's Community Impact Fund allows donors to establish a permanent endowment to support the MCF grantmaking program. Grants are awarded competitively and proactively to Dane County charitable organizations in a variety of focus areas.

FIELD OF INTEREST FUNDS

Field of Interest funds allow donors to identify and support a particular field of interest through the fund's annual distribution without designating a specific charitable organization or program.

DONOR DESIGNATED AND AGENCY FUNDS

Designated funds allow donors to identify one or more charitable organizations or programs to receive annual support from the fund. Designated funds may be established by individuals, businesses, or charitable organizations.

GIVING PARTNER FUNDS

A Fund for Women allows donors to establish a permanent endowment to support the women and girls in our community in reaching their full potential while working to build a culture of women's philanthropy.

Regional Giving Partner funds serve communities outside Madison, including Columbus, Lodi, Middleton, Monona, Portage and Rio. These funds take advantage of MCF's strong administrative resources and are advised by a committee of community residents.

SCHOLARSHIP FUNDS

Scholarship funds allow donors to provide grants for educational purposes, helping students with high school, post-secondary and professional education.

“

While 2020 was a year of extraordinary challenges for nonprofits — with COVID affecting operations, donations and client services — it also was filled with inspiration. Nonprofits truly exemplified leadership as they sought creative ways to have an impact in their communities, pivoting to online services and forging deep relationships with those they serve.

Community Impact Grants: Leveraging Our Grantmaking for a Bigger Impact

In 2020, Dane County’s nonprofits worked overtime to help our community survive the COVID pandemic and MCF was proud to invest in their efforts through our Community Impact grant awards. MCF awards grants from this fund in five areas: arts, environment, learning, community development and capacity building, typically through a competitive grantmaking approach.

In response to the pandemic and the sharp racial inequities affecting our country and community, the Board of Governors elected in April 2020 to focus all MCF’s remaining grantmaking on projects related to COVID and diversity, equity and inclusion. From building nonprofit capacity and addressing critical pandemic needs, to increasing equity in education during an unprecedented virtual school year, 2020 provided as many opportunities for good work as it did challenges.

CAPACITY BUILDING

Census Outreach - $69,000

- African American Council of Churches
- Bayview Community Center
- Bridge Lake Point Waunona Neighborhood Center
- East Madison Community Center
- Freedom, Inc.
- Kennedy Heights Community Center
- Latino Academy of Workforce Development
- Vera Court Neighborhood Center

Every 10 years, the United States conducts the Census. Too often people of color, people in poverty and children under five are undercounted. To better reach these people, MCF funded multiple organizations to conduct outreach, working hands-on in their communities to inform and register residents. Each person these organizations helped get counted means increased federal funds for our community: $2,000 every year for the next decade. This project increased the count by thousands of people, leveraging more than $21 million in federal funding for Dane County over the next 10 years.

Co-funding for the project came from UW Health, National Guardian Life, CUNA Mutual Foundation and the Alliant Energy Foundation. Thank you!

Food Pantry Expansion – $50,000

- Badger Prairie Needs Network
- Middleton Outreach Ministry
- River Food Pantry
- St. Vincent de Paul

These food pantries, the four largest in Dane County, together serve tens of thousands of people each year. In 2020, due to the pandemic and the resulting massive job losses, they have cumulatively seen a 60% increase in demand. The pantries not only faced unprecedented need, but they had to adapt their delivery systems to address the fact that during the pandemic, indoor food pantries are not safe for clients or volunteers. The pantries pivoted this year to provide outdoor food distribution in all seasons. Funding provided protection against the elements for staff, volunteers, clients and the food itself. Each pantry added outdoor structures and heating. MCF also worked with the Goodman Foundation and the Oscar Rennebohm Foundation to co-fund the project, resulting in $150,000 of total funding.

Grantwriting Assistance to Nonprofit Organizations – $25,000

Many smaller nonprofits lack the staff and time to find and apply for regional and national grants, especially during the pandemic. MCF funded grantwriting consultants to work with nonprofits to help them apply for pandemic relief grants. Through this program, local organizations were able to bring in more than $500,000 in funding.

Helping Nonprofits Access COVID-19 Stimulus Funds – $50,000

Nonprofits were hard hit when the pandemic shut down the economy, losing revenue from admissions, classes and donations. MCF provided funding to help Dane County nonprofits learn about and apply for federal, state and private COVID stimulus funds, submit compelling and successful loan applications, and leverage millions of dollars in funding. More than 170 organizations participated in webinars, small group sessions and one-on-one work with Scholz Nonprofit Law, leveraging this investment into more than $27 million in forgivable government loans.

A Space to Better Support Black Youth and Families – $25,000

As Urban Triage has grown, so has its need for space. MCF provided a grant to help build out a new culturally sound, welcoming, creative space on Madison's South Side to engage and support Black youth, families and other vulnerable populations. The new space will greatly increase Urban Triage's training capacity, accommodate community events, offer online and on-site teaching, and provide resources and efficiencies for entrepreneurial businesses.

EDUCATION

Parent Instructional Support Program – $50,000

The move to virtual education shifted additional instructional responsibility onto parents and caregivers, who were now expected to be teaching assistants and technology troubleshooters. Urban League of Greater Madison launched a new initiative to provide support and resources to parents trying to navigate this new educational terrain. This program – done virtually to ensure everyone's safety during the pandemic – included live training events, office hours, a helpline and a growing online repository of free materials.

Providing Free and Equitable Internet and Wi-Fi for Families – $50,000

This grant helped provide internet access to all Madison Metropolitan School District students during the pandemic, particularly families without internet access or wi-fi who faced immediate barriers to information access and K-12 schooling.

New Elementary School Planning – $50,000

Building on the success of One City Preschool, MCF invested planning funds for One City Schools' expansion and to begin a capital campaign exploration for a new elementary school building on Madison's South Side.

Black Male Mentorship Program – $25,000

Omega School piloted an educational pathway project that supports completion of a GED and matriculation at Madison College. Each student is matched with a mentor, provided a laptop and wi-fi hotspot, and will participate in a "College Boot Camp" that includes a college-ready book club and tuition-paid participation in a college course.

ARTS

Challenge Grant for the Arts – $100,000

MCF provided funding for a challenge grant to support all 10 resident agencies at the Overture Center. This grant leveraged additional donor dollars, helping the arts organizations survive the pandemic, sustain services during the year-long closure, and deal with the cancellation of hundreds of events in 2020. The challenge helped the Overture Center raise $220,000 in additional funds.

Looking Back: Grants That Had an Impact

Many projects MCF supports are long-term and their impact doesn't become clear for several years. To learn more about how our grantmaking has made a difference, we reach out to organizations we've funded in the past. Here are two stories of impact from grants we made in 2014.

Inspiring Philanthropy in the Village of Oregon

In 2014 MCF funded a project to turn a dilapidated water pump house in the center of the Village of Oregon into a small community center. It was a modest project that became a philanthropic seed that blossomed into multiple successful campaigns to revitalize the village's public spaces.

At the center of these efforts has been village resident Randy Glysch and many generous local donors. The transformation of the pump house into a hub of activity led to the artful restoration of the striking "Tin Man" water tower above it. These successes inspired a key anonymous donor and other local philanthropists to work with Glysch toward more ambitious projects. Over the next few years, they built a new food pantry to replace an old unheated storage facility. A beautiful youth center came next. Now, Glysch is spearheading a multi-million dollar campaign for a new library.

While the pandemic put a damper on the campaign, it couldn't stop it. The fundraising team hosted a COVID-safe outdoor event, selling brats to people in their cars. Their goal was to raise $25,000; they raised $80,000.

Prairie Wisdom: Restoring the Land and Reducing Lake Pollution

The Benedictine sisters at Holy Wisdom Monastery have been careful environmental stewards of their land for years. When the opportunity arose to purchase an additional plot to restore, they knew they could further reduce erosion and lake pollution. They just needed some help.

The 53-acre farm field had been prone to erosion. During big storms, torrents of water cut gullies in the land and carried sediment and excess phosphorus across the adjacent highway into Lake Mendota. In 2014, with the help of a grant from MCF, the Sisters purchased the land and began restoring it into a native prairie and oak savanna.

Nearly 100 volunteers helped remove invasive species and plant more than 120 varieties of native species. The landscape blossomed into a bio-diverse habitat for a variety of birds and insects and a web of microorganisms that restored soil health. The robust root system has helped stabilize the ground, eliminating erosion and allowing the groundwater aquifer to recharge.

The land now has been opened to the public. Every year, thousands of people enjoy invigorating walks through the prairie or find a quiet path for spiritual retreat and reflection.

Field of Interest Grants

MCF stewards more than 30 different Field of Interest funds, which encompass a wide variety of donor-directed focus areas, from youth to elderly, basic needs to environment, and education to arts. Donors may add to these funds or start a new fund that supports their own charitable interests, with MCF staff facilitating grantmaking on their behalf.

In 2020, more than $634,000 in Field of Interest grants was awarded to 49 agencies.

“ A donor’s decision to gift hard-earned dollars is rarely made lightly. Helping them make their choices and honoring their wishes is the work we do at MCF. This past year, we were especially grateful for the caring and compassionate giving we witnessed from well-established donors and those who gave for the first time to respond to a community and a world very much in need.

A Year of Remarkable Change

On Friday, March 13, 2020, at 3:30 in the afternoon, MCF closed its office due to the coronavirus pandemic. We had no idea what lay ahead, and no way to understand the impact of that decision. It marked the beginning of a year of remarkable change as we were now tasked with stewarding the funds you have entrusted to our care in a remote work environment.

With limited access to the office, our first task was to manage daily operations, from processing mail to producing gift receipts to preparing fund distributions. Zoom became our conference room. We created or upgraded our home offices. We adjusted our processes to maintain the checks and balances required for accurate accounting and financial reporting.

The stock markets plunged, leading to a 12% decline in the value of our diversified investment portfolio on March 31. We faced so many unknowns: How steep a fall would it be? How long would recovery take?

Guided by our investment managers and our Investment Committee, MCF took solace in the fact that our long-term investment strategy and our annual spending policy are designed specifically to withstand this type of market volatility.

However, changes in fund value affect our administrative fee revenue, which supports our operating budget. So we reduced spending, put off hiring a new position and revamped existing job descriptions rather than filling an open position.

By April, the diversified portfolio was showing signs of recovery; it ended the year with an 8.6%* return. Our Maximum Giving and Boston Trust Walden ESG portfolios finished strong as well, with 8.5% and 10.4% returns, respectively.

Meanwhile, donors saw the pandemic’s impact and they responded. In 2020 MCF received its largest number of gifts to-date, slightly more than $72 million in contributions.

This past year was an extraordinary moment in history. As the community’s foundation, our role is to bring together the financial resources of individuals, families and businesses to support our community’s needs. In 2020, there was no better time nor greater need to help facilitate your charitable giving.

MCF’s diversified portfolio currently includes a 20% allocation to private investments. Valuation of these assets typically lags the valuation of our marketable investments by three to six months. Therefore, the current period valuation for this portion of the portfolio was not available at the time of printing and is not fully reflected in the one-year return. We anticipate that a current period valuation of these private investments will have a material, positive impact on the one-year return.*

Madison Community Foundation complies with all applicable state and federal reporting requirements.

The 2020 and 2019 Consolidated Statements of Financial Position and Consolidated Statements of Activities are currently undergoing audit by Baker Tilly Virchow Krause LLP. Gifts to MCF-Directed Funds

In addition to stewarding endowments established by community members and nonprofits to meet their charitable goals, MCF stewards its own funds. These endowments help pay the foundation's expenses and fund our grantmaking programs: Community Impact Fund, Fund for Arts and Culture, Fund for Basic Needs/Social Services, Fund for Children and Youth, Fund for Community Development, Fund for the Environment, Fund for the Elderly, Fund for Learning, Fund for Nonprofit Capacity Building and the Administrative Endowment Fund. MCF also has two non-endowed funds designed to meet immediate needs: the COVID-19 Priority Fund and the Priority Fund.

American Players Theatre Fund & the Ronni Jones APT Children's Fund

Built on the foundation of classical works, Shakespeare in particular, APT is devoted to creating a unique and personal experience for a broad audience through clear and compelling storytelling inside language-based, poetic plays.

Morris Andrews Memorial Fund

Throughout his life, Morris Andrews was a tireless advocate for teachers and students. His vision helped turn the Wisconsin Education Association Council into one of the leading teachers' unions in the country. Strong public education, in his view, is the backbone of American democracy. Morris's chosen epitaph was "I hope I made a difference." And for many people, he certainly did. To continue making a difference, his family established the Morris Andrews Memorial Endowment. Annual giving from the Fund will support need-based scholarships for aspiring teachers and organizations addressing child poverty.

Ms. Milele Chikasa Anana Scholarship

In addition to being the longtime publisher and editor of UMOJA magazine, Ms. Milele Chikasa Anana was a mentor, advocate, community leader and volunteer. As the "Village Mother," this scholarship was Ms. Milele's dream, which she worked hard to make a reality with the support of her village. The Ms. Milele Chikasa Anana Scholarship became a reality shortly before her passing, and will be overseen by Women In Focus, Inc. The scholarship aims not only to help young people realize their dream of going to college, but also to ensure that their education initiates a lifetime of change.

The kind and generous gifts of Pleasant Rowland and Jane Coleman and their model of philanthropy and inclusiveness opened our eyes and hearts to understand that people of all means could become philanthropic. We are forever grateful for their vision, and their teachings, that people of all income levels would, and could, open doors for the less fortunate.
