FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Jeneen Hartley Joins Madison Community Foundation as Vice President of Community Impact

Madison, WI – Oct. 14, 2024 – Madison Community Foundation (MCF) is pleased to welcome Jeneen Hartley as its new Vice President of Community Impact. Hartley will help guide the Foundation's growing community impact team, as MCF broadens its approach from grantmaking alone, to add impact investing, research, advocacy and nonprofit capacity building. MCF's recent announcement of the development of the new Goodman Nonprofit Center reflects this expanding focus.

Hartley brings extensive credentials to the position, with more than 25 years of experience in the nonprofit and philanthropic sectors, focused on education, community engagement, grantmaking and nonprofit capacity building.

Before joining MCF, Hartley was with the Douglas Education Service District in Oregon, where she served as Director of Education Services and led a team that coordinated with school districts, government agencies and community organizations to improve student success. Hartley also has served as a program officer for the Ford Family Foundation in Roseburg, Oregon, and Family Philanthropy Advisors in Minneapolis, Minnesota.

"Jeneen will be a fantastic addition to our team," said Bob Sorge, President and CEO of Madison Community Foundation. "Her extensive background in education, philanthropy and strategic planning, combined with her passion for supporting organizations in their development and success, are pivotal skills for a leader who will expand our approach to community impact."

"I'm excited to dive into the work with such a talented group of colleagues," said Hartley. "And I'm looking forward to getting to know the greater Madison area, explore the Driftless Region, and be back in the Midwest!"

Hartley's first day at MCF will be November 18, 2024.
